Testing:

We ran the program multiple times and essentially manually tested it to find bugs. For example, we had two users who entered the same user name and the program allowed this, so this was a bug that we then needed to solve. We essentially tested by entering into the chat box and seeing if the expected output was displayed on the appropriate chat windows. If the text output was not what was expected or our UI malfunctioned during manual testing, we knew we had to go debug. This required running and testing the chat room several times.
